YORK REGION MEN'S EMERGENCY AND TRANSITIONAL HOUSING

Holiday Greetings and 2022 Year in Review

Men's Emergency and Transitional Housing Development

14452 Yonge Street, Town of Aurora

Project Update

The new building will be welcoming, inclusive and supportive – a safe space for men experiencing or at risk of homelessness to access vital supports. More than just a place to stay, the program will help people make connections to services increase life stability while they work towards finding permanent housing in the broader community.

Construction can begin once all planning applications are approved by the Town of Aurora and after completion of the Henderson Sewage Pumping Station. Construction of the pumping station is progressing well and expected to wrap up in 2023.

York Region is proposing 37 emergency housing beds and 31 transitional housing beds. The Town of Aurora recently provided comments on the Zoning By-Law Amendment Application submitted by the Region. The project team continues to work closely with the Town and the Community Liaison Committee to address the comments and prepare the next set of drawings. The Town of Aurora is planning a public meeting in early 2023.

The new year ahead presents many opportunities to build on the progress made so far. We will continue to keep the community informed throughout all stages of the project. Visit york.ca/MensHousing for project updates and answers to frequently asked questions.

We are here to gather feedback, share plans, provide information, and answer any questions you may have. Happy Holidays!

Other Emergency and Transitional Housing Developments

The need for emergency and transitional housing remains high in our communities, and many individuals and families struggle to find safe and affordable housing.

To help people keep and find housing, York Region recently opened Passage House, an 18-unit transitional housing building for adult men in the Town of East Gwillimbury. The Bridge in the Town of Georgina provides duplex style transitional housing units for youth and is nearing completion. Visit york.ca/RapidHousing for more information.

People experiencing homelessness in York Region who are seeking shelter are asked to contact the York Region Emergency Housing Central Intake Line at 1-877-464-9675 ext. 76140. This phone line is answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Get Involved

We are looking for York Region residents, businesses and community partners to join our Community Liaison Committee (CLC). The CLC meets regularly to provide feedback, address issues throughout the planning and construction period and act as community advocates. For further information about the CLC and for project inquiries, please contact:
