

Persons with weakened immune systems (e.g. pregnant people and the elderly) and infants under one year are at a higher risk for developing serious animal-related disease.

It is recommended that they avoid touching or feeding any animals.

